REIGNER HOBBS, of the United States land office, has received the circular of Commissioner of the General Land Office, and is now in the city, and is looking for a new place to mine. He is now in the city, and is looking for a new place to mine.

The Ontario hotel people have the bids in for the foundation of the Ontario hotel. The delay of awarding the contract was caused by certain changes in the plans of the building. Mr. Adler, the architect, corrected these last week and a contract for laying the foundation was awarded to Elias Morris of this city and H. Probst, of Kansas City, on Saturday.

The plans for the upper portion of the building are to be materially changed. Mr. Adler, the architect, made the plans to a certain extent after the style of that building, which cost many millions of dollars. When the projectors of the Ontario advertised for bids, it was found that it would cost three quarters of a million of dollars. This was a much greater sum than they calculated to invest and they ordered the architects to alter the plans to keep the cost within half a million dollars. The architect made the necessary changes to allow work to be prosecuted on the foundation, but the alterations on the building proper will require some time.

Although the morning had been very well, the contract only embraced the foundation, it will, and with intent to deceive the public, announced that the contract was let for the $700,000 building. This information was echoed in the afternoon paper. The truth in regard to the building now going on is strong enough without any elaboration or expansion of facts.

Whatever changes are made in the Ontario, it will be one of the finest hotels in the west.

Half a million dollars would double the cost of the Ontario, and the Ontario count any hotel in Omaha, and the Ontario will be one of the finest hotels in the west.

The building will not be reduced in size, but will remain of the same mammoth dimensions.

The organization of the stock yards company is going on quietly, all the leading business men taking stock in the project. The projectors expect to incorporate this week.
